exchange packet region disclosed in document 1 is one of design to a person skilled in the art. Moreover, the means wherein a renewal directory, which is management data for additional data, is sequentially written following on from said additional data in order to utilise the recording region with minimum waste and the renewal directory is detected by confirming unwritten regions is known as a means for recording on a writeable recording medium, as disclosed in document 3. Since it is common practice for a person skilled in the art to consider the use of a recording region in terms of efficiency, it would be easy for a person skilled in the art to apply said known feature to the exchange packet data and exchange packet address for recording in the exchange packet region disclosed in document 1 to produce a common region in which the exchange packet address and the exchange packet data are recorded continuously.

Document 4: JP 2000-357374 A (Hitachi Maxell, Ltd.), 26 December 2000, paragraph [0004], (Family: none)

As disclosed in document 4, the feature wherein recording management data containing exchange region data is recorded multiple times in multiple places and, in addition, each of these regions is replicated and recorded was known prior to the filing of the present application and there appears to be no difficulty in combining these features with document 1.

Claim 5

Documents 1-3 and

Document 5: JP 2000-036161 A (Samsung Electronics Co., Ltd.), 2 February 2000, paragraphs [0066] and [0072] & EP 0965988 A2, paragraph [0103]

Document 7: JP 2002-312940 A (Matsushita Electric Industrial Co., Ltd.), 25 October 2002, paragraphs [0009]-[0010], (Family: none)

With respect to the feature wherein the common area is recorded during the unfinalised period and the common area is ultimately recorded in the defect management area when the finalisation occurs, a feature wherein, when recording onto a writeable recording medium, defect management data is recorded in an RMD region (see paragraph [0066]) and then ultimately recorded in the read-in region, which is the management data region, at finalisation (see paragraph [0072]) is common practice, as disclosed in document 5. Moreover, the feature wherein the RMD region is recorded during the non-finalisation period and data is produced during the finalisation period for recording in the read-in region using said RMD data, is common practice, as disclosed in document 7. Therefore, these features do not appear to have any particular significance in comparison to the features disclosed in documents 1, 2, 5 and 7. Limiting recording into a data region after finalisation would be obvious to a person skilled in the art.

Claim 6

Documents 1-3, 5, 7 and

Document 6: JP 2000-195178 A (Matsushita Electric Industrial Co., Ltd.), 14 July 2000, fig. 3

Reasoned statement under Article 35(2) with regard to novelty, inventive step or industrial applicability;
citations and explanations supporting such statement

Document 6 discloses the feature wherein the spare region is that between the read-in region and the user region. Therefore, the feature wherein the spare region is provided in any region of the disc was known in various arrangements prior to the filing of the present application and applying such a known arrangement would be a matter of design for a person skilled in the art.
